The Mosquito device has been around for 3 years now and has sold over 9,000 units to police, councils, schools, shops, clubs, banks etc. etc.

Over these three years we have seen a growing number of requests from homeowners and small shops wanting to use the Mosquito on their houses and premises because groups of rowdy or destructive teens regularly congregate outside their properties. Nearly all of these people complain that the police can't provide any effective solutions to the problems.

We understand both viewpoints. It costs the police significant amounts of money just to move on a group of badly behaving kids and in most cases, the kids come back again and again. On the other hand, we know what it is like when you cannot enjoy the peace and quiet of your own home or business.

The original Mosquito was designed to be used in commercial and industrial applications and is too powerful in most cases to be used on residential property or outside small neighbourhood shops. That has now changed as we launch the new Mini-Mosquito specifically designed for these applications.

FAQs - MINImosquito

How loud is the Mini-Mosquito?

The maximum volume of the unit is 85 dB.

Does it hurt?

No. Even on the maximum volume setting, the device is not loud. It is simply annoying

Are there any health risks?

No. The sound from the Mini-Mosquito is not dangerous to health in any way. For further information, go to 'reports' on www.compoundsecurity.co.uk

I heard the Mosquito was banned?

Several pressure groups, youth groups primarily have tried to have the Mosquito banned. There was also an attempt to ban the device at the European Parliament level. ALL ATTEMPTS TO BAN THE DEVICE HAVE FAILED! For more information go to 'reports' on www.compoundsecurity.co.uk. The Mosquito is completely legal within the UK, EU, USA, Australia etc.

What about pets?

Most animals can hear significantly higher frequencies than humans and are therefore not bothered by the sound. Formal tests have been conducted in respect to dogs and have found the Mosquito to cause no reaction. Further information can be found in the Guide Dogs for the Blind report in the 'reports' section on www.compoundsecurity.co.uk

Will the Mini-Mosquito work if the kids are playing loud thumping music?

It will depend on how far away the disturbance is, however, as the majority of music, especially modern music, has no high frequencies in it, the Mosquito will still be annoying in most cases.

What about my kids and neighbours when they are sleeping?

The sound from the Mini-Mosquito is VERY directional, so it only goes where you point the unit. In addition, high frequency sound does NOT penetrate walls, windows, doors, fences, walls or even very dense foliage.
